Great Demonstration for Oakland.

This evening a public parade of at least one thousand business men of Oakland constituting the Chamber of Commerce will inaugurate a movement for the advancement of the city's best interests. The Oakland Chamber of Commerce is one of the most active and energetic civic organizations in the State. It has been for several years past devoting itself earnestly and zealously to the upbuilding of Oakland and its material interests, under the inspiration of young, intelligent, enthusiastic, clear-headed and ambitious business men who have a just comprehension of Oakland's great opportunities and they are desirous that the whole world shall know of them.

Under the leadership of these enterprising young men the Oakland Chamber of Commerce takes the initial step toward raising its membership during the coming week to the five thousand mark. It will not fail for the lack of earnest and intelligent effort. Every man at present holding membership is a worker and his heart is filled with the missionary spirit to carry on a crusade during the coming week of incalculable importance to Oakland's future.

The destiny of Oakland lies in the hands of its own citizens. But they must unite and pull together to accomplish the best results. Individual effort is all well enough in its way. But it is through co-operation that modern progress is surest of attainment. Oakland has great possibilities before it. The great body of its citizenship is wide-awake to them. It has fully aroused from its past slumbers. Silurism is dead and it remains only as one of the fading unpleasant memories of the past which the new blood in the community is doing its best to forget.

With a membership of five thousand, every man a worker and every worker striving to exploit Oakland's advantages at home and abroad, the Chamber of Commerce cannot fail to become a power for the greatest good. Its leaders mean that this object shall be attained, so that Oakland may be advertised intelligently and comprehensively far and wide as the most progressive and up-to-date city on the Pacific Coast, the one possessing the greatest natural attractions for home-making and industrial and commercial development. The spirit of progress is in the air. Tonight's demonstration should make it contagious and every man engaged in business within the city's boundaries become seized at once by the epidemic.

The Los Angeles Recall Election.

Los Angeles has held its first recall election for a chief executive officer. It is the first time in the history of the recall movement for it to be applied by any municipality to the Mayor and the progress of the campaign has been watched with interest all over the country. The results at the polls yesterday have favored the recallers' candidate by a small plurality.

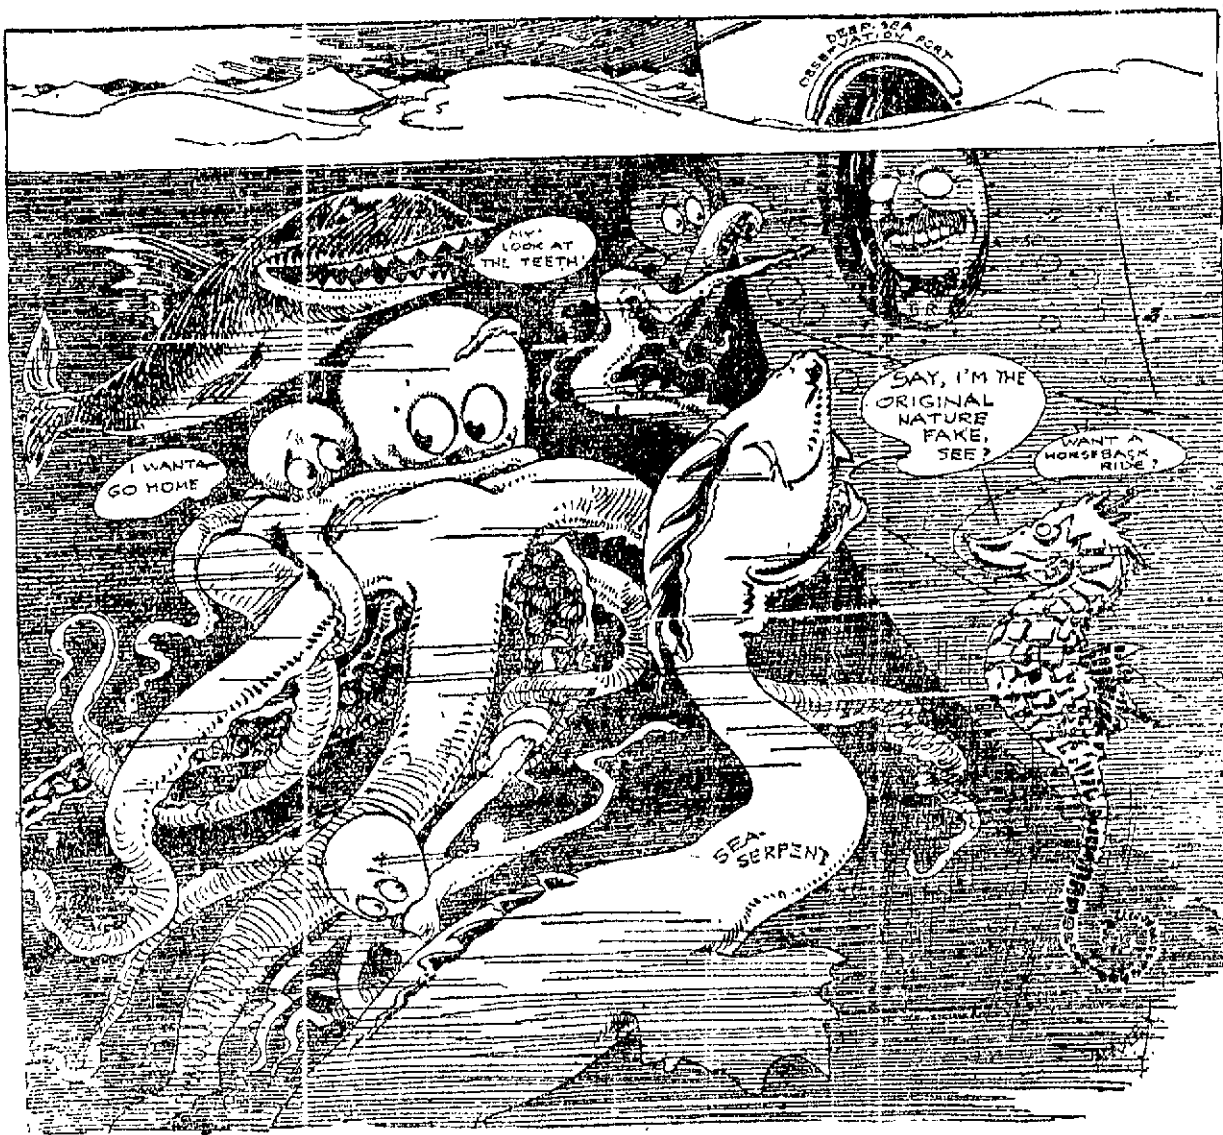

It was evident to the outside observer that Mayor-elect Alexander was not a strong candidate. His record was tainted with chronic office-seeking; but he was the strongest man that would accept the recallers' nomination.

The campaign was hotly and bitterly fought. It developed some sensational features. It opened with three candidates in the field, namely, the recalled Mayor, who sought popular endorsement of his administration; the recallers' nominee and a representative Socialist. The recalled Mayor resigned office and withdrew from the contest in the middle of the campaign to avoid exposure of private and public misdeeds, leaving the issue between Alexander, the recallers' candidate, and Wheeler, the Socialist. The recallers expected a walk-over for Alexander, as the total vote cast in Los Angeles for Debs, the Socialist candidate for President in the November election, was only 4000. A vote of over 25,000 was cast and to the surprise of everybody—the recallers in particular—Wheeler, the Socialist, carried five of the nine wards and Alexander was elected by a plurality of only 1650, 367 scattering votes having been polled. The result shows conclusively that there exists a numerous element in the community which regards the recall with disfavor, disapproved invoking it against Mayor Harper, whatever may have been his shortcomings, and preferred trusting the administration of the city's affairs in the hands of a pronounced Socialist rather than submit to the domination of the recallers. But the result of the election goes far to prove conclusively that "the recall" is in Los Angeles to stay.

Castro is bent upon making the attempt to recover the position of Dictator of Venezuela from which he has been deposed and has sailed from Bordeaux in order to stir up another revolution in the country. But the French Trans-Atlantic Steamship Company will not land him on Venezuela's shores and forced him to take passage to Port of Spain, island of Trinidad. The latter is under British sovereignty. Castro is said to have arranged for the shipment from France of a cargo of arms and ammunition as soon as he raises the flag of revolution. It will be interesting to note whether the French government will allow an expedition to sail from its shores with revolutionary intent and designs on a government with which it is now on friendly relations, or whether the other powers that had trouble with Castro when he was Dictator will submit to the possibility of the renewal of their troubles by allowing the craft carrying war supplies to land on the Venezuelan coast. In all probability they will intervene by keeping a naval force patrolling the coast and seize the vessel, if she is discovered, and hand her over to the Venezuelan government as an act of friendship in the interest of peace.

The Bakersfield Californian is one of our most valued interior exchanges. It is edited with ability, and covers its local news field with creditable diligence. One of its chief merits is its candor and independence in editorial expression. It is frankly partisan and often mistaken, we think, but apparently it says what it honestly believes to be true and advocates what it deems to be right. And it does not violate the amenities of journalistic debate in combatting the opinions expressed by other newspapers. It is a pleasure to note that its advertising pages give evidence of prosperity. It deserves the liberal support of its constituency, for it is loyal and indefatigable in its advocacy of local interests, and is an excellent newspaper. THE TRIBUNE congratulates the Californian on the purchase of a new press capable of printing 7500 papers an hour. This is proof that it intends to make a bigger and better paper for Bakersfield, which will be a decided benefit to the community. Editor Harrell has our best wishes for success in future. He is making a live paper for a live town.

ON THE WAY

MR. ROOSEVELT MAY STUDY MARINE LIFE IF PROPER FACILITIES ARE AFFORDED HIM. —CHICAGO DAILY NEWS.

Success of Colorado River Control.

An undertaking scarcely less notable in its magnitude and importance than that of the construction of the Assuan dam to conserve the flood waters of the Nile and distribute them over the lowlands of Lower Egypt for the benefit of its agricultural interests, has just been completed by the United States government through the construction of the Laguna dam on the Colorado river, fourteen miles north of the town of Yuma. Its purpose is to control and direct the waters of that great stream to reclaim a large portion of the arid waste of the Colorado desert. It is one of the most important land reclamation enterprises inaugurated during Roosevelt's administration. The fact that private enterprise anticipated the government in the employment of the river to reclaim the desert and created thereby one of the richest agricultural counties in the State, does not detract one iota from the important results which are assured through the completion of the Laguna dam by the United States Reclamation Service. The dam has cost approximately a million dollars, and it may cost another million to construct the main canal and its laterals to carry the water diverted by the dam for the irrigation of approximately 130,000 acres of arid land. Whatever the cost, the reclaimed land when thrown open to settlement will be required to return it to the government. However, the experience of the Imperial valley settlers removes all doubt as to the ability of the land to redeem itself of the tax which will be imposed upon it in order to reimburse the government. Besides being the initial step in the plan of a big reclamation scheme the construction of the Laguna dam has been an engineering triumph of no mean order, as there were many difficulties to overcome and some perplexing problems to solve associated with it.

President Taft has restored the marines to the place on board the warships whence they were removed for shore duty by Roosevelt. The marine corps was originally organized and until Roosevelt ordered otherwise, was maintained as a naval police force. It is the agent through which discipline is enforced and law and order maintained on board a warship. The corps is the guardian of the quarter-deck. When it was removed from the navy and assigned to shore duty the officers' quarters whose tenants are numerically weak were exposed to the forecabin where the enlisted inmates are numerically strong and dangerous when it becomes essential to punish any breach of discipline. Every commissioned officer in the navy will feel secure now that the President has returned the marines to their old quarters on board ship.

TRIBUTE PAID TO LATE J. E. M'ELROY

Edward J. Tyrrell Suggests Monument Be Erected to His Memory

EDITOR THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE: John E. McElroy, a citizen of Oakland, has answered God's heavenly summons, laid aside the cares of this earth and passed to another, and I believe, a better sphere, there to receive the reward of his earthly career—a career his family and friends may well cherish in loving memory.

The passing of this man is not strange, for we are born to die, and I believe not for McElroy, the man dead, for surely a life of Christian rectitude, guided along the lines of one's religious belief, such as this man lived, must, at the hands of a just God, receive its due reward. But my sympathy goes out to his wife, his family and his relatives. They will certainly miss him and so, but in another way, will the city of Oakland miss his civic devotion, his energy and general knowledge. His demise is not only a deplorable loss to his relatives but to the whole community. His public service to this city can no more be measured in mere gold than the wonderful influence for good reflected in his daily life.

In death the more memory of the character of the man should prove as great a stimulus for higher ideals of public and private conduct, as McElroy, the kind, genial and learned living being, was all too glad to elicit as a friend. I believe his life and public service should find more fitting and lasting recognition than mere words of praise and commendation. It is worth while to preserve the memory of his fidelity to his city, his family and his friends as an example to the young men of Oakland, and as proof of the appreciation of the people of the city he served so intelligently and well.

Would it not be a commendable thing to erect a suitable monument in his honor in one of the new parks or playgrounds now under way in various parts of this city, and in which he took such a deep interest? I am satisfied that if a few of his close personal friends and business associates would constitute themselves a "McElroy Monument Committee" that hundreds and hundreds of his friends would cheerfully contribute their mite to erect such a monument, and on that monument I would carve an epitaph like this: "The world is better for this man having lived." EDW. J. TYRRELL, Oakland, March 26, 1909.

A needle factory in Redditch, Worcestershire, makes 70,000,000 needles every week.

A manufacturer of article furniture in Paris has just completed a chair the fore legs of which are of solid gold.

The London committee on public accounts has just published a report as to the cost of the king's coronation. It is stated that the expenses connected with the coronation amounted to £350,289 5s. 1d.

A motor road-sweeping and watering machine is in use in Paris. It is stated that the machine will sweep 100,000 square metres of road surface daily, as against the 36,000 square metres possible with a horse-drawn machine.

A farmer, whose death is reported, lived well at the age of 80. In early life regularly walked to Chester—a distance of sixty miles—in order to catch a train for Bangor. He drove his pig all the way from Anglesey to Cardlow, a distance of 185 miles.

The Rev. H. Gibson adopted a well plan for turning the new A. C. C. (St. John's) Church Men's Club. He commissioned a large motor van, and seated on the back made a tour of the parish. In the end of the day he had secured sufficient articles to furnish the club.

At a meeting of the East End Union (Society) held at guardians it was reported that a aged inmate, who had been in the work house, became chargeable to the union as a pauper lunatic in January, 1899, and that his maintenance during the fifty years had cost the ratepayers over 300 pounds.

Recently there was sold by auction in London the great collection of Greek coins made by F. S. Benson of Broken during the past fifteen years. Some of the coins sold for marvellous prices. The record price of £640 was bid for a tetradrachm of Kotana, which had been pure by Mr. Benson in 1893 for £12.

A tetradrachm of Amphipolis, which realized £389, had cost its late owner £218, and at the Bubbury sale it was sold for only £55. A Terina stater, which had been purchased for £40 at the Evans sale, realized £280.

There are no half measures about the lav. If it means to be absurd, absurd it will be. The Lee coroner was about to hand five shillings to a bargeman for pulling a woman out of the water, when it was pointed out that the woman was alive when rescued. As a result the man got no reward. Had the woman been dead he would have been given five shillings.

What is claimed to be the tallest chimney in the world is now under construction at Great Falls, Montana, for the smelting works of the Amalgamated Copper Company. This stack has a foundation of 74 feet in diameter, and will rise to a height of 556 feet, with a 54-foot diameter top. Connection with the furnaces will be made by a flue 20 feet high, 18 feet wide, and 1800 feet long. The tallest chimney hitherto built is that of the Haisbrucker Huette, near Freiberg, Germany, 460 feet in height.

Some bequests of an unusual nature were made by the late Rev. Arthur Gilbert Gladstone, vicar of All Saints, Brixton Hill, London, who left estate of the gross value of £14,820. He bequeathed £10 each to the organist, vergor, blower, and pew-opener of All Saints, £5 to each of the fairly regular scholars and teachers of the Sunday-school Bible classes, one year's wages to each of his servants, including his gardener, and a sum not exceeding £250 for distribution among his church-workers at the discretion of the executors.

SOCIETY NEWS of the WEEK

MRS. JAMES WEBSTER

a brilliant and most fascinating young hostess. She entertained thirty guests in a most delightful way, her guests of honor being Mrs. Harrie Taylor, Miss Sophie Van Sicken and Miss Alice Sullivan. Mrs. Harrie Taylor (niece Woodbury) is spending a few weeks of the spring here in a visit to her old friend, and she has had a most cordial welcome home from every one.

She is planning to return in the near future to Goldfield, where her husband has very extensive mining interests.

Miss Sophie Van Sicken is a very charming Eastern girl, and a very pretty girl as well. She is from Vermont, and she has often come west in the past to visit her relatives, the Van Sicken family, who represent one of the by a large white hat elaborately trimmed in pink roses.

Among the guests was Mrs. Edward Y. Gibson of Alameda, Mrs. de Laveaga's sister, and other guests at the luncheon were Miss Anita Thompson, Mrs. Sylvanus Linnam, Miss Elsie Clifford, Mrs. Eugene Lent, Mrs. Van Sicken, Mrs. Marvin, Miss S. D. Dancy Davis, Mrs. Bert Scott, Mrs. Homer Craig, Mrs. Charles K. Harlow, Miss Fay Chapman and Miss Florence Treadwell.

HAVEMEYERS AT LINDA VISTA

All the many friends of the Havemeys were very glad, indeed, when they decided not to establish their permanent home at Burlingame, but chose instead a delightful location at Linda Vista.

The Misses Vera and Ethel Havemeyer are charming girls and they are planning to entertain a great deal in their new home on the heights.

They gave a very delightful luncheon this week in honor of Harriet Meek, the bride-elect, who is just now the center of many complimentary affairs.

Entertaining for the bride-elect has come to be an established custom among us, and almost all the attractive brides have more complimentary dates than they can possibly accept. Indeed, one wonders why they are not very tired little brides after these many preliminary days of strenuous activities.

The luncheon given by the Misses Havemeyer included for the most part the girls who are to be Miss Meek's attendants at the coming wedding in April, the guest list including Miss Harriet Meek, Miss Gladys Meek, Miss Arline Johnson, Miss Josephine Johnson, Miss Ruth Kales, Miss Rose Kales, Miss Elsie Schilling, Miss Beatrice Simpson, Miss Mollie Mathews, Miss Ruth Houghton.

MRS. PALMER AND HER TWENTY GUESTS

Mrs. Warren S. Palmer entertained twenty guests at one of the most beautifully appointed and one of the most elaborate luncheons of the season, entertaining her friends at the large home of the Palmers on Grand avenue, Alameda.

Mrs. Palmer is rapidly establishing a reputation for superb entertaining, so perfectly planned are all the appointments of her delightful home. She is a woman of wide horizons, of a fine outlook on life, and one of the most brilliant conversationalists to be found on either side of the bay. For, in addition to many accomplishments, fate gave her a saving sense of humor, so excellent a charm in woman.

Mrs. Palmer's dinner was most elaborately planned and the decorations called forth many compliments from the assembled guests. The centerpiece on the table was a most picturesque statue, about which was arranged a bank of splendid Jacquemot roses extending almost to the places of the guests.

There were Jacquemot roses for the litter to wear, and the favors and name cards were both most artistic. Warren Palmer is a very delightful host. He has done things much worth while in the railroad world, but his mark along big lines but he remains always the sincere friend and the genial host, two characteristics which serve to make his home most attractive.

Among the guests entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Warren S. Palmer were Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Lukens, Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Craig, Mrs. Charles K. Harlow, Miss Fay Chapman and Miss Florence Treadwell.

PICTURES IN THE WEDDLER TODAY

Miss Florence Bramhall, whose picture appears today, surprised her friends on Tuesday by announcing her engagement to Thomas Edward Ambrose. The pretty affair at which she presided was given to compliment Mrs. Sam Sigmund, the fiancée of Mrs. Bramhall's brother. When the young hostess announced her secret he was overwhelmed with congratulations from those present.

Mrs. James Webster is a charming young, Oakland matron who entertained last week at an elaborate reception given in honor of her sister, Mrs. Jewell, a young bride of this month. Mrs. Webster is a very attractive woman of the blonde type and of pleasing personality.

Mrs. Edward Conway is another popular young matron who is exceedingly well liked in her social circle. Before her marriage to the young business man of this city she was a prominent society belle of Kansas City.

Mrs. Herbert-Franklin Gery is a bride of this winter and will be remembered as pretty Genevieve Macdonald. She has a large circle of friends in the bay cities.

BIG DINNERS OF THE WEEK

Two dinners of the week have been of special interest—the dinner given by the Misses Johnson in honor of Miss Harriet Meek and Stuart Hawley, and the dinner given by Mrs. Warren S. Palmer, complimentary to Miss Gertrude Russell and Paymaster Edward Hale Douglas, U. S. N.

Miss Josephine Johnson is to be one of the attendants at Miss Meek's wedding, and her guests included the girls who are to be in the wedding party, an additional number of men being asked to the dinner.

The large Lukens home on Jackson street is an ideal place for entertaining, and the dining-room in the large home is especially attractive.

Josephine Johnson is a very delightful girl in many ways, and she makes a very genuine hostess, when nothing pleases more than to give her young friends a good time, and that always means that one's entertainments are a success.

MRS. E. G. LUKENS AT ST. MARK

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Lukens are spending some time at the Hotel St. Mark, where they gave a dinner this week, entertaining in a d fashion a circle of congenial friends. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lukens are making their home across the bay, having taken a residence there for the winter and early spring months.

PLANNING FOR EARLY DEPARTURE

There are many plans for early departure this year, especially across the bay, for attractive summer homes at Menlo, Burlingame, Ross Valley and Mill Valley are being opened and many prominent families have already taken up their residence in the country for the summer.

Mrs. Maival and her daughters, Mrs. Frank Watson and Miss Luette Maival, are planning to go April to Glen Ellen, where they have a most delightful and most picturesque bungalow.

Miss Luette Maival was a hostess this week at an informal dinner at her home on Van Ness avenue, and her guests enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon.

Miss Marian Miller, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Miller, and one of the popular entertainers of the winter, has returned from a trip to Southern California. She is going abroad with friends early in the summer and will spend some months on the continent.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Chickering, Mrs. Chickering's sister Miss Margaret Parr, are also to go abroad this season and have arranged an interesting itinerary on the continent.

Miss Gladys Meek, who as a school friend of Mrs. Roger Chickering (Theo Parr), planned a complimentary to the travelers this week, entertaining for them at a delightful evening at cards.

BRIDGE CLUBS WELL ATTENDED

The various bridge clubs this week have been scoring a full attendance of members, now that it is Lent, and that people have elected to play bridge in Lent. Among the young hostesses of the week have been Miss Dornin, Mrs. William Thornton, Miss Bessie Fillmore and Miss Craig. Miss Dornin is one of the most accomplished bridge players on our side of the bay, and she is at the head of a club recently organized to play "duplicate bridge," which is a most strenuous game, more difficult than bridge proper, and requires more skill and a certain keen intelligence. These young girls, however, play the game extremely well and they enjoy their afternoons together.

Mrs. William Thornton White entertained the members of her club at luncheon at her Elmont home on Wednesday, the delightful little luncheon being followed by the usual hours at bridge.

Miss Bessie Fillmore was the hostess of a neighboring club which has on its list some very good players, among them Miss Edith Beck and Misses English.

Spring at Piedmont is always a delightful and for many seasons friends of the Craigs have found their way to the home of the latter. Every spring a thimble bee under the spreading cherry trees is in order and is greatly enjoyed by Jessie Craig's young girl friends. The bridge club which she entertained this week is made up of specially good players, among whom are Mrs. Hiram Hall and Miss Carolyn Palmanteer, both of whom play an excellent game of bridge.

There are many plans for early departure this year, especially across the bay, for attractive summer homes at Menlo, Burlingame, Ross Valley and Mill Valley are being opened and many prominent families have already taken up their residence in the country for the summer.

VISIT OF AMBASSADOR BRYCE

Much has been said concerning the coming to this coast of Ambassador Bryce, and it is really a date of much importance to our state. Many compliments in a social way have been offered the Bryces, but their stay is so short that they have not been able to accept the proffered hospitalities.

Many people met Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce at the elaborate reception given them at Hearst Hall by President and Mrs. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, representing, of course, the university. The big Charter Day reception is always an important one because there are always assembled so many prominent men—alumni of the university and others interested in its welfare.

It was a rainy afternoon and Hearst Hall is difficult of access, nevertheless the reception was a brilliant one in many ways.

Mrs. Bryce proved to be a most charming guest of honor, very typically English, so much so that she made an interesting study. She has the bright coloring characteristic of English women, and she is much younger than the Ambassador, to whose interests she has been greatly devoted.

It was one of the brilliant assemblages of the year, and among the very handsome gowns one noticed at the reception were those worn by Mrs. Hearst, Mrs. Bryce, Mrs. Benjamin Wheeler, Mrs. Gillett, Mrs. William H. Crocker, Mrs. Bard, Mrs. Slack, Mrs. John A. Britton, Mrs. Garret McKenney, Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mrs. Isaac Roqua and Mrs. Charles Euteneier.

SOME LONGED FOR DATES

There are many dates before us to which many of us may look forward with much interest. Music and art appeal to us especially in Lent, and so there are concerts and picture exhibitions of note.

Of March 27th the Sketch Club exhibit opens on Post street in San Francisco, and Mr. Noyes of this city is to lend his original Whistler, and Mrs. Hearst is to send to the exhibit some of the beautiful pictures owned by her.

On Tuesday, the 13th, at Ebell auditorium, will be given the testimonial concert to Miss Mabel Rice, and on the following evening the De Koven and Glee Clubs of the university will give a concert in the picture gallery.

Mrs. Oscar Maurer, Mrs. Walter H. Seaver and Miss Phoebe Blaney.

MACDONALDS BUY CHAPMAN HOME

The J. H. Macdonalds have bought the Chapman house on Vernon Heights, and are planning to occupy it in the near future.

It will give them a home near that of their son, A. S. Macdonald, and it is not far from the artistic residence of the Roy Macdonalds.

Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald and their daughter, Miss Borence Macdonald, make up a most hospitable household, entertaining their friends in a delightful fashion, and their home makes a charming center for many interesting family gatherings.

LUNCHEONS OF THE WEEK

Three delightful luncheons have added to the social history of the week, the hostesses being Mrs. Remi Chabot, Mrs. Edward de Laveaga and Misses Havemeyer, two of the luncheons being given across the bay at the Fairmont.

Mrs. Remi Chabot entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Hampton Lynch, who are guests at the Moffitt home in this city. The Chabots and Moffitts are friends of many years standing, and complimentary affairs in each other's homes have been part of the social history of Oakland in the past. Mrs. Lynch was Miss Lucy Moffitt, and her friends remember her attractive wedding in the Moffitt home, the beautiful bride she made, and her handsome bridesmaid, who was Josephine Chabot.

Mrs. Lynch's home has been in New York and in Ridgefield, Connecticut, and she has only come to the coast for short visits to her mother.

She was joined by Mr. Lynch a few days ago, and they are planning to return to their Eastern home early in April.

Mrs. Chabot presided at the luncheon, which was a most elaborate affair, the table being specially attractive with its centerpiece of gorgeous American Beauty roses.

Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. John Hampton Lynch, Mrs. Moffitt, Mrs. James K. Moffitt, Mrs. Robert Knight, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Diekmann, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Boqueraz, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Knowles, Mr. and Mrs. William Edes, Mrs. Herbert Moffitt, Willard Barton, Roger Boqueraz, Paul Kosekavitch.

Mrs. Chabot is planning to go to her country home at St. Helena in the near future. She is very fond of charming Villareal in the summer time, and she spends very happy days there with her children and grand children and their friends.

YOUNG MATRON CHARMING HOSTESS

Mrs. Edward de Laveaga, one of San Francisco's most attractive young matrons, was the hostess at the Fairmont on Thursday at one of the most elaborate luncheons given there this winter.

The de Laveagas are living in the historic home on Geary street, which has always represented the best social traditions, and Mrs. de Laveaga, who was Delight Woodbury, has made many friends across the bay. She grows always more attractive and is most prominent families of Alameda county. It is good news to many friends here that Miss Van Sicken's future home is to be in California, for her engagement to Mr. Sherrard, a well-known insurance man, was recently announced.

Miss Alyce Sullivan, who is a niece of James D. Phelan, is one of San Francisco's popular brides-elect, a charming girl, for whom much entertainment is being planned in leading social circles across the bay.

Among Mrs. de Laveaga's guests was Mrs. Andrew Welch (Julia de Laveaga), who has entertained this winter more than any other young matron in San Francisco. She is a perfectly stunning hostess, and entertains in a superb way, with much originality and with much hospitality.

Mrs. Edward de Laveaga gave her luncheon in the gray room of the Fairmont, which was a beautiful study in decoration. The table was lovely, with its gorgeous decorations in beautiful pink blossoms, which showed with stunning effect against the background of the gray room.

Mrs. de Laveaga was a most attractive hostess. She is a petite brunette and she is always exquisitely gowned, in a unique fashion, and with a touch of originality that distinguishes her from every one else. She was a dainty and a very charming study presiding at the large luncheon, one of the most delightful little hostesses one might wish to see.

Mrs. de Laveaga wore a handsome gown of Roman silk, in shades of pink and elaborately trimmed in beautiful lace. The gown was set off

Wall Street Believes Harriman Will Appoint a Special Consulting Board

HE HIMSELF IS SILENT ON QUESTION

Reached San Francisco Yesterday From Paso Robles-- Goes East Sunday

Pleased With California and With the Outlook of Railroads All Over Country

NEW YORK, March 27.—Wall street and men prominent in railroad circles are inclined to accept as a fact the report from the Pacific Coast that E. H. Harriman will form a special consulting board with a view to relieving himself of some of his vast duties. It is generally accepted also that he will soon retire from the presidency of the Union and Southern Pacific railroad. This, however, does not mean that Mr. Harriman would take any less interest in the activity of the system.

James H. Hill resigned the presidency of the Great Northern but continued to dominate the road more than ever. Mr. Harriman, it is said, would as chairman of the boards of the road of the Union Pacific system, he is actively identified as ever with the control of those properties, but would concern himself with broad questions of policy, to the exclusion of matters of detail.

Declines to Deny

"It is true that you have created a board of four men, consisting of Hill, Stubbs, Kirtschmitt and Hood, to take charge of your Western roads and operations, with yourself acting in an advisory capacity," E. H. Harriman was asked yesterday as he got off his private car at the Townsend Street depot with his daughter, Miss Mary Harriman.

"Now, this came from New York, didn't it? Well, I won't affirm or deny the rumor, because if I ever did take it into my head to do some such thing, and I had told you I was not going to do it then you would say you had me in a lie. These fellows in New York are always making up things like that and firing them at me across the continent."

"Are you going to build a residence on the Hope ranch in Southern California?"

"I don't care to talk about that, either. I don't want to hurt the feelings of the Hope ranch people or to disappoint any one. I have to see what the boys in the East say next fall. I've got a place at Klamath now, but Southern California is a great country, as all California is, and I haven't made up my mind."

EDWARD H. HARRIMAN AND HIS DAUGHTER, MISS MARY HARRIMAN.

fall. I've got a place at Klamath now, but Southern California is a great country, as all California is, and I haven't made up my mind."

Goes East Sunday

"I am just looking around," he added, "and taking things easy. It is likely that I shall start back east Saturday night or Sunday so as to spend a few days with my boys before they return to their school. I have been gone from New York for nearly two months."

The members of his party, who came in with him on this train from Paso Robles were Mr. and Mrs. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, E. D. Calvin, general manager of the Southern Pacific line, and Miss Harriman. They were entertained last night at William H. Crocker's place in Burlingame at dinner, and attended the theater later. There was considerable regret that the Harriman party did not stop at Del Monte as had been arranged on their itinerary. On the way to San Francisco yesterday Mr. Harriman and President Louis J. Hill of the Great Northern, had several long talks. Mr. Harriman himself kept a copy of the secretary and stenographers busy and spent a great part of the trip on the observation platform making copious notes and sending numerous telegrams.

San Francisco Plans

When asked directly if he proposed building a big dam in San Francisco, Mr. Harriman said that it might be so in the future if the people of the city were so inclined. He explained that the dam was all right in the present building, but it is not the intention to build a big dam in San Francisco.

"How have you found railroad and other affairs in the West?" he was asked. "The people are learning to be conservative. We have been over-promoted, and the country has gone ahead too fast with new and big enterprises. The money has been run up in mines and other things, where it could not be pulled out quickly, and when money got tight things went to smash. But the farmers are better than they ever were, and they will be richer. They will keep all prosperity, if they don't get too conservative and keep all their money."

Steady Prosperity

"When they begin to spend their money normally, things are going to jump, but we'll keep an eye on the financial indicator now, and our prosperity will be even and steady. There is no boom element and the resulting danger of falling flat again."

"The Pacific Coast is going right ahead," and San Francisco is doing wonders. I have enjoyed myself immensely and am feeling fine. I guess that's about all I can say."

Await Their Chief

OGDEN, Utah, March 27.—General Manager Bancroft and General Superintendent Davis of the Oregon Short Line and Superintendent Manson of the Southern Pacific will leave Ogden Saturday on a special train for Sparks, Nev., to meet President E. H. Harriman, General Manager Calvin and other officials of the Harriman system, who will pass through Ogden Sunday evening or Monday morning enroute to New York.

While the schedule for the Harriman special has not yet been arranged, there is no further doubt that Mr. Harriman's return will be over the Southern and Union Pacific roads, and that the story of his Panama trip and yacht excursion is at least premature.

General Manager Mohlar and General Superintendent Parks of the Union Pacific are expected to arrive at Ogden to meet the Harriman party and to escort the special to Omaha.

BLOWS RENDER HIM SENSELESS

Deliveryman Knocked Down by Thugs and Robbed of Money

FUNERAL OF EDWARD GILL IS HELD AT OCEAN VIEW

BERKELEY, March 27.—The funeral of Edward Gill, one of the best known of the horticulturists in the bay region, was held this afternoon from the Gill home in Ocean View, where for the past thirty years he has maintained the Gill Nursery.

Gill came to Oakland from New Jersey, his birthplace, in 1862, and several years afterward established in Ocean View the nursery which made him a notable man in the Ocean View nursery. He has produced many rare and beautiful varieties of flowers, particularly roses, for which he was famous. He is survived by four children, John, Dr. Edward C. Gill, Isabel and Elizabeth.

SUGGESTS CIVIC PLAYGROUND FUND

A. S. MacDonald Would Have Appropriation in City Budget For Work

ADDRESSES MEMBERS OF TRI-CITY ROTARY CLUB

E. B. Raitt of Los Angeles and Other Speakers Tell of the Spread of the Movement

The regular weekly meeting of the Tri-City Rotary Club was held at the Hotel Athens yesterday. President Raitt presided.

William Gardner and D. Edward Perkins, the first of the playground movement in Los Angeles, told of the success of the playground movement in Los Angeles. They have paid $1,500,000 for playgrounds in Los Angeles. They have paid $1,500,000 for playgrounds in Los Angeles. They have paid $1,500,000 for playgrounds in Los Angeles.

Benefit to the Young

The playgrounds, said Raitt, take care of the children's idle hours and supply an experienced playground manager, such might be detrimental to the movement. The playgrounds, said Raitt, take care of the children's idle hours and supply an experienced playground manager, such might be detrimental to the movement.

Suggests Appropriation

A. S. MacDonald, chairman of the Playground Commission of Oakland, thanked the Rotary Club for the courtesy extended to Raitt who had volunteered his services to the Oakland Commission. MacDonald also stated that the Playground Commission of Oakland was holding a present only as an advisory board, as every dollar required must be applied for and appropriated by the Board of Public Works and he suggested that, in the next city budget there should be a fixed appropriation for this exceptional educational benefit to the youth of the community.

Movement Is General

Mrs. Moore, of the interest being taken in the playground movement all over the United States, and that there were many instances of the same in the city of Los Angeles. She also stated that the Playground Commission of Oakland was holding a present only as an advisory board, as every dollar required must be applied for and appropriated by the Board of Public Works and he suggested that, in the next city budget there should be a fixed appropriation for this exceptional educational benefit to the youth of the community.

Arrange Next Meeting

The next meeting of the club will be held next Friday at 12:30 p. m. at St. Mark Hotel, when the captains of the different brigades will give talks on Progress and Prosperity.

COUNTERFEITERS' DEN IS WATCHED

Secret Service Men and City Detectives Keep Rendezvous Under Surveillance

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Secret service officers, assisted by a squad of city detectives, have been watching a cottage on the corner of the old City Hall, for several nights to effect the capture of the counterfeiters of the $100 bill, who are believed to be in the city. It is supposed to be the headquarters of the party.

Secret Service Agent Nye, who has been at work on this case for several months, located the cottage as the "mint" of the counterfeiters several days ago. The place had been rented by two men and a woman. On Thursday night, in company with Detective Matthew D. Burke of the Miss on station, he went to the place and opened the door with a skeleton key. After a long wait he came in the place, and as he stepped through the door the detective flashed a bullseye lantern in his face and pressed a revolver to his head. The man reached for his pocket, but was disarmed, an automatic revolver being taken away from him.

Battles For Liberty

The detectives and the counterfeiter struggled for ten minutes in the darkness before they were able to capture him. The cottage is one of the best equipped places that has come under the observation of the secret service men for a long time. The coins that are counterfeited were from moulds so cleverly made that the product resembled genuine specie. Hundreds of dollars of the spurious money have been circulated on this coast and in the Middle West.

Two men have been identified as one of the most famous counterfeiters in the country. His criminal career began early and although he is now but 35 years of age he has served four terms in the penitentiary. He steadfastly refuses to reveal the names of the other members of his crowd and in fact will disclose nothing in connection with the case. He is at present in solitary confinement, and the officers are confident that they have a clue to his accomplices.

DOGS AND CATS HOLD COUNCIL OF WAR AND DECIDE NOT TO BE LED BY STRINGS

HOW CARTOONIST VIEWS CAT AND DOG SITUATION IF COLONEL BULLOCK'S WISH WAS CARRIED OUT.

MAYOR TAYLOR IS FRIEND OF CANINE

Propose to Veto Measure, Forbidding Animals Liberty, if Passed by Council

Says Fido: Kit, no more meowings. Concerns on the fence taboos: Have to get a license tag before you get more food.

Says Kit: Dear Fido, ain't it fierce. In all our traveling. That now they say we are compelled to travel on a string.

ALAMEDA, March 26.—How would you like to be a dog? Just a plain little four-legged puppy, who wags and wags his tail at you when you walk down the street just because he realizes that you are an "unfortunate enough to have but two legs"? He sympathizes with you. Or the other kind, that shaggy fellow who watches over the baby in its carriage while the mother enters the store to purchase groceries, and when you attempt to put the baby out of the kindness of your heart, that shaggy fellow struts his tail and looks at you with those great brown eyes of his?

Bad to Be a Dog Just Now

But to be a dog just now is dangerous, for Colonel E. B. Bullock is "right" in his opinion. He wants to have all dogs lead around by a string, and a little wooden string might do, but it must be a string. And the dogs are holding a meeting to decide upon the merits of the question. Oh, fate, why must little Fido be compelled to sacrifice his freedom? Just because he barks at his heels, is he to be considered? Perhaps, but not indeed! For the poundman to suffer his little dog to be a dog, with all your kind and gentle, it is now proposed to put you on a string and if you are not thus brought under control, you will have to associate with those low bred mongrels in the pound.

Against Roosters Crowing

While there is also some talk of an ordinance to prevent roosters crowing before 7 o'clock in the morning and the members of that great feline race from even uttering a meow beneath the bed room window at about midnight, the dog is the subject of the bitter for the pussies are asked to old models who might wake up and discover a burglar under the bed through the agency of the meow.

Said Miss Kittens today: "I absolutely refuse to be interviewed but I believe we suffragettes should have a chance to vote. While we may be in the minority, we have our say at times and shall continue so to do. If an ordinance is adopted to collar us and put a tag upon us we shall appeal to the supreme courts of the United Confederation of Cats, referring to the provision that all men are, 'oh excuse me, but anyway I for one resent it.' (Meow meow meow)"

Dr. Towser Has Say

Dr. Towser when asked as to his opinion of the dog string ordinance, said: "You must understand that I am not speaking for publication, but I do wish to say that dogs are dogs the world over. Now put yourself in my place. (Chorus of how-wow from street) If you were a little doggie just starting out in life, were trying to do your best to harm no one who did not try to kick you in the shins without reason, who never made a snap at anyone who did not provoke him just to see you show your teeth, who crowded no one from the sidewalk like some of those two-footed people of yours do, who doesn't snarl and snarl at you, who doesn't own you, put a collar upon them and then lead them around by a string. Those two-footed people do more harm than we do. But, of course, we are just

The Marine Exchange Outlook 'Phones For Help; Thieves Are Captured

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Captain Norman Nelson of the life-saving station and Mounted Police, viewed the robbery at the Marine Exchange at Port Miles that two daring highwaymen were robbing a man on ocean boulevard, effected the capture of Fred H. Thomas and Walter Aiken, for whom the police have been searching for many weeks. It was through his telescope that Captain Anderson, the observer, had seen the highwaymen hold up John Connors of the Richmond district.

Anderson telephoned to Captain Nelson at the life-saving station and he dashed to St. Francis's Tavern and pressed an automobile into service. The machine was sent ahead at full speed, followed by Captain Pilemon. They reached the spot just at the robbery.

SACRAMENTO, March 27.—Wood, won, robbed and deserted by her husband within three months is the story told the police by Mrs. P. C. Lowry of Independence, Ore., who has asked the police to aid her in locating her husband and $1,000.

Three months ago, Mrs. Lowry, then a widow, owned a small stock ranch near Independence, Ore.

A few days after the wedding, at her husband's request, she left the ranch and came to California with him to look for a position. Lowry did not get the position, but a few days ago, while here, he heard of another one, and she says he persuaded her to give him $1,000. They started last Saturday. She says she has not heard of him since.

FILIPINOS OPPOSE PAYNE TARIFF

Island Assembly Claims Proposed Law Will Bankrupt Country

MANILA, March 27.—Floor, Lower Chamber of the majority in the Philippine Assembly, presented today a resolution embodying a memorial to Congress opposing the Payne bill. The resolution declares that its enactment would be "prejudicial to the interests of the Philippine people, especially so far as it concerns economic administration." The resolution then continues:

"The approval of the bill would mean a great loss of income for the island treasury, so much so that it would be impossible to sustain the present government. The financial condition of the country is such that it would be impossible to impose new taxation, direct or indirect."

Income Causes Worry

The resolution next approves a resolution adopted in May, 1907, which asked the admission of sugar and tobacco to America without any concession of time, and insists upon the adoption of a series of that resolution. In conclusion it protests "vehemently but energetically" against free trade for America here and limitations on Philippine products in America. The resolution also declares that the Philippine Legislature cannot in any possible manner devise a new means for producing an income to maintain its government.

The Assembly later amended Quizon's resolution by adding the declaration that, in the belief of the Legislature, the passage of the Payne bill would prove prejudicial to the independence of the Philippines. Then it was adopted without division.

Commissioner Smith has gone to Manila for a conference with his colleagues, and it is expected that the commission will consider the resolution early next week. Smith expresses the belief that the commission will succeed in devising a plan to reduce the prospective deficit to about a million pesos.

MAY GIVE SCHOLARSHIP TO BRIGHTEST PUPIL

GOSSIP FROM THE SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

MME. EAMES AND THE "REPORTER PERSON"

Emma Eames is not so much "col-lapsed" over the impending suit filed by de Gogorza's wife as not to be able to look out for her own interest pretty effectively, however, as a reporter for the New York Sun testifies to. The reporter, solicitous for the state of the diva's health, tapped on the door of suite 1714 of the Auditorium Annex, where Mme. Eames is staying. To his request for an interview the reporter got the door slammed in his face, and then overheard the diva's most effective censure notes pouring into the telephone. "Click! Click! Send up the house detective at once! There is a reporter for a newspaper here again! I want you to send the detective this very minute and have this reporter person thrown out!" With much display the house detective did his duty. Mme. Eames looking on with pleasure while the newspaper man was ordered from the floor. Then, after the manner of reporter persons and house detectives, the person and the detective adjourned to the buffet, their mock heroics having inspired thirst. De Gogorza, by the way, occupies suite 1114 at the Annex.—The Wasp.

GREENWAY AND PHELAN

James D. Phelan and Ned Greenway are at variance upon a question of veracity. I was testified in the Calhoun case by Herbert S. Bonfield, and it stands forever in the record of the court, that Greenway told the witness that he had refused to withhold invitations to the Friday Night Assemblies from the Calhouns and Thornwell mutually as requested by James D. Phelan, and further, in explanation of his refusal, that Greenway had told Phelan that some people were better born than others and therefore better entitled to receive invitations for a sembler of this kind than some of those who managed to force themselves upon the company of ladies and gentlemen. James D. Phelan, in a letter to the Bulletin, the "lease" of which has not yet again "expired," denies the statement of Greenway, saying that while he had a right to ask for the alleged favor at the hands of the social arbiter, being himself a "patron" of the assemblies, still he did not do so. Thus is the issue joined between James D. Phelan and Ned Greenway; and we must now decide whose word is most worth of credence. Let me subject the issue to inductive process of analysis. It ought to be easy to determine a question of this scope, where the protagonists are so conspicuous in the public eye and whose activities are so constantly recorded in the public prints.

First let me consider the reputation of Greenway for truth and veracity. Has any one ever heard that he was a liar? Has any one ever accused him of perverting facts to serve his selfish purposes? Has anyone ever known him to speak evil of his neighbor; to slander his fellow citizens; to conspire against the good name of those whom he might be pleased to dislike; to plot injury against those who might stand in the way of his ambitions, his desires, his interests? The answer is loudly and unanimously in the negative. But how about the reputation of James D. Phelan in this regard? Is the answer either loud or unanimous? Take, for example, Mr. Phelan's affidavits of expense incurred by him in two campaigns for the office of Mayor of San Francisco. These affidavits were required by law as a guarantee that the candidate had not spent more than ten per cent of the salary of the office to which he aspired, in the effort to gain the office. It is notorious that between $15,000 and $25,000 was spent in the interest of Mr. Phelan in each of these mayoralty campaigns. Did Mr. Phelan spend the money? Was it Phelan money or the money of somebody else? Did Mr. Phelan swear to the truth in his affidavits? If the money was spent; if it was Mr. Phelan's money; and if the affidavit was false, how does the oath of Mr. Phelan stack up against the word of Ned Greenway?

Prince Poniatowsky was interested in the establishment of a race track at Ingleside. James D. Phelan promised that he would not oppose the enterprise. The Supervisors passed an ordinance granting permission for the maintenance of the track. The newspapers protested. Mr. Phelan, always sensitive to any expression of what seems to be public opinion, hedged upon his agreement with Poniatowsky. On the last day of the term allowed for the Mayor to disapprove the measure, at midnight of that day Mayor Phelan went to the rooms of the Board of Supervisors and vetoed the ordinance. The veto is on record in the archives of the board and is part of the history of San Francisco. The promise that James D. Phelan made to Prince Poniatowsky is corroborated by the testimony of enough reputable citizens to satisfy any disinterested court in Christendom. Now how does it stand between James D. Phelan and Prince Poniatowsky upon the issue of veracity?

James D. Phelan testified in a matter involving municipal interests of San Francisco, while he was Mayor of the city. The case is on record before the Supreme Court. It doesn't matter at this time what it was all about. Suffice it to say in this connection that after Phelan had testified Chief Justice Beatty handed down a decision entirely apart from his opinion as to the merits of the case at bar, in which he gave it as his opinion that James D. Phelan was "the shiftestest witness" he had ever heard. The opinion was not a part of the judicial record; it was only the personal opinion of Chief Justice Beatty; but it is sufficiently convincing for those who know Chief Justice Beatty and are also acquainted with James D. Phelan.

Other instances wherein the word and oath of James D. Phelan have been at variance with the record, the fact and his own agreement might be cited; but I think these are sufficient to impeach the veracity of Mr. Phelan in any controversy with Ned Greenway. False in one, false in all, is an ancient axiom of the law, and I think it holds firmly in this issue of personal veracity between the arbiter of social elegancies and the arbiter of the graft prosecution.—Town Talk.

"FIGHTING" MCCOOK'S DAUGHTER WEDS

The marriage of Miss Susan Alexander McCook, daughter of "Fighting" Colonel John McCook, to Peter Augustus Jay, first secretary of the American Embassy in Japan, was celebrated in Washington on Tuesday before a very brilliant assemblage. The young couple immediately left Washington on a brief honeymoon and will proceed shortly to Tokio. Colonel McCook is one of the eight "fighting McCooks" who served during the Civil War, and a cousin of Colonel Anson G. McCook, of the other tribe of "fighting McCooks," numbering five strong, who served during the war also. Colonel John McCook attained fame as a lawyer at the New York bar. Mr. Jay is a graduate of Harvard with the class of 1900 and has been in the diplomatic service since his graduation.—The Wasp.

OUR NIGHT LIFE

The old down town district which was once the center of gaiety is rapidly rounding into form, but it will not present anything approximating its old aspect, nor will it savor of its old familiar self until the cafes and theaters have again supplied their irresistible lure. The big stores have all blossomed out more colorful, more beautiful than ever, more consistent with metropolitan wealth and dignity, but these sumptuous establishments are of the shopping district and are animated only by day. By night their windows present gorgeous pictures of bewildering beauty dazzling and entrancing to feminine eyes, but while they contribute to the enchanting ensemble of the nocturne they can add nothing to the mirth of the scene which they adorn. Without the cafes and the theaters the night in the old heart of this great city is a dreary waste, but these indispensable elements will soon be pulsating with the old atmosphere. Next month will see the opening of the Orpheum at the old stand, in a big, brand new steel building. This will probably be one of the gayest events in the young life of the new city. I believe that nearly all the seats for the opening performance have already been sold. So it is evident that the goddess of pleasure will soon have her shrines as of old, and as for worshippers they will come trooping to the altars. A mint of money is being spent to provide diversion and entertainment for the growing populace, and the men who are engaged in the business of catering to the merriment of the community and promoting the joy of living are looking forward to a very prosperous season. With Portola day in the foreground and the glad prospect of a large supply of facilities for inducing the joyous mood, the probability is that the carnival spirit will soon have such a firm hold on the community that we shall quit making faces at one another and mend our parochial ways.—Town Talk.

ALICE AGAIN

Alice Roosevelt that was, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth that is, is still doing things. This time, though, as befits a settled down married lady, her exuberance runs rather to millinery. Mrs. Longworth is wearing quite the most "stunning" hat in Washington, the gossips say. It is a Directoire shape in black Neapolitan braid, with high crown and wide brim rolling well up on the left side and drooping at the back. The outline of the crown is lost in the trimming, which appears to be half a dozen rich wavy ostrich plumes of the lamella Alice blue. They are arranged with the grace of a Sir Joshua Reynolds portrait, go from side rather than from front to back, and at the right side of the hat, well down on the brim, is a large rather square bow of velvet ribbon, also in the Alice blue. There's an Easter suggestion for somebody.—The Wasp

HOW ABOUT THE ETHICS OF THIS CASE?

As Dean of the Hastings College of Law, the versatile Edward Robeson Taylor, hewer of moral platitudes and drawer of several salaries, frequently takes occasion to impress upon the students who sit at his feet and absorb wisdom the importance of intellectual honesty. He has told them that it involves high moral integrity and that it is the leading characteristic of every great lawyer. Inferentially it is a leading characteristic of Mayor Taylor. How then are we to account for the conduct of Mayor Taylor with reference to the Election Commission? The Supreme Court recently decided that Mayor Taylor erred in failing to appoint to that commission two representatives of the Independence League. Thereupon Mayor Taylor appointed two representatives of that organization, but he did not declare vacant the positions of the men whom he had illegally appointed. Consequently the men appointed in accordance with law must bring suit to oust the men who are holding office contrary to law. Mayor Taylor may see fit to explain that he knows of no ground upon which to remove the commissioners in office. This explanation will not satisfy me. Mayor Taylor demonstrated in the case of School Director Boyle that there is nothing so easy as to find a plausible reason for dispensing with the services of an undesirable member of his official family. Mayor Taylor appears to be quite as felicitous in ignoring the provisions of the charter which he helped to frame as that other shifty executive, Mr. James D. Phelan, who, it was popularly supposed, had consecrated himself to the upholding of that instrument. So high-minded a man as Mayor Taylor should scorn to do Phelan politics, but the violation of the charter by Mayor Taylor is but a venial offense compared with Dean Taylor's toleration of the indecent evasion of the plain letter of a decision of the Supreme Court.—Town Talk.

CIGARETTES FOR THE LADIES

Accounts of London social functions read somewhat startlingly for us out here, where cigarette smoking, however prevalent it may be, may not be with women, at least has not the sanction of custom for that same nonchalance in use with which London maids and matrons exercise the privileges of my Lady Nicotine. The recent dinner given by Mrs. Asquith wife of the Premier, at her Downing street home, is an illustration. There were many American women present, including Lady Francis Channing of Boston, Mrs. John Robertson and Mrs. Head of New York. The accounts describe all of the costumes of the guests in detail, the guest list, the decorations, the menu, and finally conclude with a line, as though by way of afterthought, "Coffee and cigarettes were served to the ladies in the parlor after dinner." It will be staid and corny next. Sir Francis Channing, by the way, is a Boston expatriate, having surrendered his American birthright for British vote.—The Wasp.

BRITISH COMMENT ON BRYCE

According to British journalistic opinion Mr. Bryce obtained the British Embassy at Washington on the strength of his book, "The American Commonwealth." At the time of his appointment the London Saturday Review said: "It is no doubt conceivable that Mr. Bryce would have been appointed to Washington if he had not written that book, but we should say it is very improbable." And the great British weekly added: "No other reason for his appointment occurs to us spontaneously, though one might perhaps discover or invent other reasons if one tried." And again: "We had not understood that the Prime Minister regarded Mr. Bryce as so disastrous a failure in Ireland as to be anxious to take the first opportunity to move him without friction." The Review characterizes our distinguished visitor as "a dry and bookish Scot" who was not at home in Irish atmosphere when he was filling the post of Chief Secretary. "We cannot find it very easy," says the uncomplimentary British journal, "to imagine the Irish nation with its peculiar gradings of brilliancy and charm, inconceivable at Mr. Bryce's departure. No doubt for political ends anybody can be made welcome; but even if Mr. Bryce appealed to the Irish heart, he can hardly have thrilled the Irish heart. If there were other good reasons for sending Mr. Bryce to America, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman may well have felt that the reasons for keeping him in Ireland were not absolutely imperative."—Town Talk.

CALIFORNIA BIDS HIGH

Although San Francisco doesn't have the lively art and bric-a-brac auctions which give New York millionaires and heiresses such an exciting time for their money, yet the blood of the venturesome pioneer occasionally crops up even back there, as was evidenced at the sale of the James R. Inglis collection of art in New York recently. New Yorkers were having it all their own way until a beautiful piece by Diaz, "Girl and Her Dog," was put up. The bidding opened at $1000, a rich New York drygoods merchant making the start. Quickly it was run up to $3000, then $4000, then $5000, then $6000, by a quiet-mannered gentleman well in the rear. The New Yorker stood one more lift—to $6500, and when his opponent nonchalantly raised him $500, quit. It develops that the purchaser was a Californian, although the exchanges do not record his name. We will have to wait until he gets his picture home. The sale realized $70,345. Another duello of finance and artistic taste occurred between the mysterious Californian and his New York antagonist over Monticello's "The Triumph of Flora," the Californian permitting his Eastern rival to take it at $2600.—The Wasp.

A VISITOR FROM QUEENSLAND

Perhaps the most distinguished "stranger within our gates" last week was Mr. Theodore Unmack of Brisbane, Queensland, Australia. Mr. Unmack has been actively connected with government affairs in his own country; having been formerly Postmaster General, and now a member of Parliament. He is also a member of the Board of Health and of the Chamber of Commerce. For some time he has been traveling about the world and making observations, and during his stay in San Francisco he has been a keen student of civic affairs. Mr. Unmack was a guest at the luncheon of the reception committee when the members of the board of state harbor commissioners were present, and in response to an invitation to speak he expressed his interest in what he had heard of their plans to improve and increase the facilities of this port. He was at home on the subject of municipal government as conducted in Australia, and while outlining the policies and methods of administration in his own country he took occasion to make some suggestive comparisons with the American system, and he expressed a conviction that American municipalities would profit by a study of conditions in the southern continent. One point which particularly impressed Mr. Unmack was California hospitality.—Town Talk.

ANOTHER ILLUSION GONE

Actor James K. Hackett has just made the astonishing declaration that in all his stage career he has never kissed a woman. Those impassioned climaxes of romantic art that were wont to start the whole phalanx of matinee maids and misses to palpitating are all the bunk, evidently. "I have never kissed upon the stage a pair of feminine lips, nor a cheek, nor even a dainty white hand. Why? Why, because the rouge upon my lips would make a blotch on her. The only requirement I have for women upon the stage is that they keep out of my way. A woman on the stage is just a 'prop,' like a bottle or a chair. The love scenes are actually make-believe to a degree that would surprise you. My thought is my art as art, and my heart is not in the slightest degree affected one way or the other by an emotion toward the women of the play, either in like or dislike." It would be interesting along with the rest of the property man's junk.—The Wasp.

THE HALF-BREED PEST

The case of Miss Helen Emery, who, with the consent of her mother, is determined to marry a Japanese domestic whom she persists in believing to be of great wealth and high lineage despite the contradiction of his mother and brother, is only another instance of "when a wilful woman will," and in all probability, as far as domestic peace and harmony are concerned, the marriage will not prove more disastrous than the majority in which eternal fitness is the last matter to receive attention. No doubt Miss Emery believes she will pine away and die if thwarted, but in the course of a very few years she will probably be ready to apply for a divorce. The real tragedy of these mixed race marriages is not experienced by the principals. The sufferers are the children, who, as a rule, inherit the worst qualities of each parent and the best of neither. One of the most pathetic narratives of personal experience ever given to print appeared recently in one of the monthly magazines under the title, "The Confessions of an Eurasian," the daughter of a Chinese mother and an English father, who found herself repudiated by both races. This is the common experience of the half-breed. One of the worst phases of the negro problem may be traced to blood mixture and the most serious outbreaks that have disturbed San Domingo had their origin among the half-breeds. The only purely children in old Chinatown were those of a mixed parentage. The Eurasian is a pariah in India, and the toughest citizens that we have had on this coast were the cross-bred offspring of Indians and Spaniards, known as "gringos." Not for the fools that rush in where angels fear to tread should we be self-righteous, but for the benefit of society we should do everything in our power to discourage such alliances as that which Mrs. Emery has so warmly endorsed.—Town Talk.

MORE ABOUT THE CROCKER PEARLS

A very sensational story is going the rounds of smartest society which everybody tells somebody else in whispers and adds "But for heaven's sake, don't say that I told you!"—and, of course it spreads and spreads, like the historic tale of the three black crowns. It has to do with Miss Jennie Crocker's famous lost pearls, and the thrilling tale which is so agitating society says that the pearls have been found and are safe in Miss Crocker's keeping. But it's where they were found that the scandal comes in, for 'tis said that they were fished up by a maid in one of the great houses where Dame Fashion feels entirely at home and Social Prestige sits enthroned on the front steps, or words to that effect. Some say 'twas the lord of the mansion who did the deed, and others whisper 'twas a feminine hand. And so the rumors fly, buzzing like Sacramento mosquitoes on a lovely night in June, while all the listening frogs croak out their acquiescence. Of course, such tales are to be expected in a bad, cynical and suspicious age like this. Another variation of the rumor which will not down is that the fair owner of the costly necklace is terribly upset over the outcome of the affair and, glad as she is to recover the pearls, the circumstances are such that she cannot acknowledge having them without making public the story. So the hordes of Pinkertons and private sleuths are still searching for the string of gems, and incidentally the $5000 reward will not be called off yet awhile, till the excitement has abated. Miss Crocker, it is said, will never again wear the pearls, which she intends some day to dispose of abroad. It is certainly to be hoped that the lost necklace will be found in such fashion as to quell all rumors and silence the thousand tongues of scandal.—The Wasp.

THE PEBBLE BEACH CLUBHOUSE

The molds for the concrete foundations of the new clubhouse which is being erected at Pebble Beach on the famous 17-mile drive, are now in place and the work of completing this part of the house will be rushed as fast as possible. In the meantime a saw mill has been established back in the forest and the work of getting out the lumber for the new building is going on rapidly. When completed this club house will be unique among buildings of its kind in the world. In addition to the many features of the club house itself—it has a situation which is absolutely unapproachable. It sits on a knoll facing the beautiful Pescadero Bay and the Pebble Beach. Immediately opposite it across the bay the massive bulk of Point Lobos is seen. It is the intention of the Pacific Improvement Company to make the new club house a nucleus for the any villas and homes which will be built in this charming locality as soon as it is opened up. The new roads which are being constructed through the forest as an extension to the 17-mile drive offer to the home builder some of the most picturesquely beautiful sites in the world.—Town Talk.

WHY NOT BE A SINGER?

If everything else has failed you, why not take a flyer at vocal culture?

Here's what a few of our celebrities are now receiving per appearance: Enrico Caruso, $5000; Geraldine Farrar, $1700; Alessandro Bonci, $1500; Olive Fremstad, $1500; Gadda, $1500; Emmy Destler, $1200; Berla Morina, $1000; Louis $950; Antonio Scotti, $800; Carl Jara, $750. Or may be you can go up more enthusiasm by scanning the list of those whose annual income are in excess of $100,000. They are Caruso, Alessandro Bonci, Geraldine Farrar, Olive Fremstad, Maria Brich, Nellie Melba, Luisa $100,000 practically without leaving the Manhattan Opera House.—The Wasp.

PUTTING UP A SOCIAL FRONT

It may be true as an average proposition that half the world does not know how the other half lives, but none of those who live in the other half know how the other half lives, but this knowledge extends to the minutest details of domestic and financial resource. One of the several prominent hotels in San Francisco is largely inhabited by this "other half" sort of folk, whose income is so meager that they can only afford the price of the room they occupy. This, however, is sufficient for the purpose of those who live this life. By an expenditure of $2 or $3 a month for room rent, they are privileged to inscribe the name of the hotel on their visiting cards, to give their notes and letters on the hotel stationery, and to receive their friends in the hotel parlors and corridors. It is so much pleasanter, you know, to sit here in the crowd than out of it, than to stay in your parlor. These people, however, are not the "other half" who they rented on "inside rooms" which they rented for a long ex-ceeding the supply that "in-ferior" offer was refused. The "roomers" enjoy the prestige gained by residence in a first-class hotel, gained by wise foresight and gained by wise foresight and experience in the art of living up to their social pretense, on absolutely nothing to speak of.—Town Talk.

ANOTHER ROMANCE SHATTERED

And as though to confirm with additional proof the truth of that moss-grown old adage about rumormongers, comes to hand close on the heels of the news of the blighted Graydon romance, rumors that I do not die of the estrangement of beautiful Mrs. Fred Houseworth from her paragon and hand some husband. That, too, was a whirlwind wooing, and when Houseworth returned from his honeymoon with his bride, they were known as "the handsomest pair" in San Francisco. The bride was one of the dashing daughters of the former Superintendent of Public Instruction. She was known as the most beautiful woman in Fresno, the Kirk's wife, and, with her sister, Miss Innes, went to Sacramento at the second nomination of Mr. Kirk. There the beauty, charm and graciousness of the inner of the sisters quite overcame the pondering delegates, broke the slate and won the nomination for their father. The handsome Ashbury Heights couple have been given up, it is said, so it looks as though the gossips have hit it correctly. A very cruel rumor to the effect that a beautiful wife had eloped with a rich admirer was met with a sharp denial all around Houseworth, who to all accounts should be most concerned, appears least bothered, merely saying lightly that his wife will return shortly, and that she is only on a little trip.—The Wasp.

BRYAN NEED NEVER GO HUNGRY

A consolation luncheon is the very newest wrinkle. It's been introduced in New York by Mrs. William Grant Brown, recently defeated a candidate for the presidency of the New York City Federation of the Women's Clubs, the very tip-top job of honor for an ambitious clubwoman in New York. Mrs. Brown's supporters, one hundred strong, gathered at a horse-shoe table at the Hotel Astor recently, and made many eulogistic speeches at Mrs. Brown. As she was paying for the dinner, they must have been sincere. Each woman spoke for two minutes, and the poetry canon was nailed to the hard, for three-fourths of all the women who got to their feet expressed themselves in metre and rhyme. All the effusions were complimentary to the Brown party and scathing opposition, who, the one agreed to a unit, couldn't vote if the ballots had been properly factored. The party symbols of the Brown were silk stockings, and each lady present was pleased to display one as part of the ceremony. Oh, dear, no! Not her own, you understand. They were merely the souvenirs—tiny doll stockings, filled with candy.—The Wasp.

ANOTHER ECCENTRIC FUNERAL

Paralleling the uniqueness of "Lucky" Baldwin's funeral, when grand opera supplanted the music of customary requiems, come to hand accounts of the funeral of Colonel John M. Otter, one of the best-known hotel men in New York, at which, by the Colonel's own expressed request before death, there was neither a prayer nor a flower. No hymns were sung; there was nothing but a farewell session of the "House of Lords." The "House of Lords," a little club of Colonel Otter's founding, no member of which is under sixty-five, sat about the plain mahogany coffin in the parlor of Otter's home and told stories about their friend's whimsicalities and un-failing good humor. That was all of the service; the only requiem. Colonel Otter believed that after death there was nothing more. He was no more mortal than the flowers, he thought, and he did not want even a flower to be robbed of life in order that it might wither on his coffin. Each of the members of the House of Lords arose in his turn and said his farewell to the dead. Then they went away. There was no clergyman. Colonel Otter established his House of Lords in 1899. He was then seventy-five years old, but as he insisted that no man was grown up until he was sixty-five he made that age a prime requisite of membership.—The Wasp.

MARRY IN HASTE

The news that Mrs. Thomas Graydon, the former Miss Beryl Whitney, only daughter of the multimillionaire ranchman and sporting enthusiast, J. Parker Whitney, has instituted suit for divorce from her husky husband, the famous "Tom" Graydon, greatest of all Yale's fullbacks, does not come as a great surprise to society, for Mrs. Graydon's lengthy visit here in California as the guest of her parents long ago gave rise to some suspicions regarding the peace of the Graydon household. Mrs. Graydon is a very pretty and attractive young woman, looking little more than a girl. Her elopement from a fashionable finishing school in the East with Tom Graydon has had full exploitation in the newspapers. Graydon's sister was Miss Whitney's schoolmate, and assisted in the girlish prank which led to a hasty marriage and a more deliberate divorce suit for "non-support." Graydon's father is said to be very wealthy. The Whitneys are affluent, and very prominent in the best society in California.—The Wasp.

A REAL AMERICAN LORD

At last America has a real-enough American lord. Among the passengers on the Cunarder Mauretania recently was the Right Honorable Lord Fairfax. That is the way the name appeared on the passenger list, anyway. Lord Fairfax is better known to his American friends as Albert Kirk by Fairfax. In November the Committee on Privileges of the English House of Lords indorsed Lord Fairfax's petition to "assume the title, honor and dignity of Lord Fairfax of Cameron." Lord Fairfax, although the twelfth baron of Cameron, was born in Virginia in 1871, and has not relinquished his American citizenship, which is a paradoxical state of affairs calculated to make the Constitution fathers turn in their tombs.—The Wasp.

SO SAY THEY ALL

William N. English and D. C. Faust, two prominent New York business men, have been registered at the Fairmont this week. They are delighted with California. What Eastern travelers would not be entranced with California in the early spring, when his own State is still in the grip of winter? Messrs. English and Faust declared that President Taft has allayed business apprehensions in the East and is regarded as likely to make a fine President, who will go out of office a much bigger man than Roosevelt. Every sensible business man from New York to San Francisco has the same opinion.—The Wasp.

AN EXCELLENT APPOINTMENT

The appointment of F. W. Dohrmann to succeed the late Reuben H. Lloyd as Park Commissioner is a first-class one. Mr. Dohrmann has been before the public of San Francisco for many years as a merchant and public man and his good reputation has increased year by year.—The Wasp.

SAYERS BEATEN BY POWELL AT DREAMLAND LAST NIGHT

San Francisco Lightweight Outfights Milwaukee Man and Earns Decision; Attell Shows Well.

By EDDIE SMITH.

CARRIED away by the fast finish Maurice Sayers made last evening in his contest with Lew Powell the crowd howled its disapproval of the decision that Referee Toby Irwin rendered in favor of Powell. The hooting was not of the mild variety, either, and there is not the slightest doubt in my mind but that the critics of the referee thought they were in the right. By every rule of boxing, however, Powell won that contest, and to do so he fought better than he has shown for a long time.

Sayers did the same thing last night that he did with Johnny Murphy in the contest of last month. He sailed in during the last two rounds after having been bested in most every one of the preceding ones and with a slam bang manner of swinging he opened up and punched with Powell, and no doubt had a little the better of the last two rounds. Powell blocked many a punch that the crowd imagined landed, and at no time seemed hit hard enough to even stop back.

Powell the Aggressor

From the first tap of the bell Powell carried the fight to the visitor, and during the contest the punches landed in such force enough in them to even make the spectators sit up and take notice were landed by the sorrel top fighter, and the first twelve rounds were his by a good margin.

In the last three rounds Powell showed up a bit and Sayers started to come in with his fists and jabs, but he did not land half the punches that those in the gallery thought he did, and by no rule of counting did he have any the better of the last three spangles, although he was entitled to an even break.

Powell had at least eleven of the fifteen rounds fought to his credit, and the referee, in rendering him the decision, did only what any fair-minded judge of the boxing game would do. He was a clever opponent who left the ring the worse marked of the pair.

Sayers has the knack of making more people think he is hitting an opponent than any fighter has ever seen, and I haven't the slightest doubt but that he must have landed a hit from the ring who did most of the howling at the decision would be his life that many a punch landed that was blocked or taken on the arms.

The Milwaukee fighter will, of course, think he was wrongfully treated by the referee, but by no means was it so, and he had only one hope, and that was for a draw, and to give him an even break would have meant that the local man must take the worst of the deal.

Attell and Dell

The result of the evening between Monte Attell and Larry Dell was a draw, and to give him an even break upon, for the game little Italian was battered and bruised about the face from the fourth round, but his great pluck and desperation in the last round, which he fought with a fighter in San Francisco for a long time.

The contest was not good to look upon, and has only the effect of demoralizing the sport and making it brutal. The contest was one in which a promising sultan in a disgusting spectacle to look upon that seemed to carry plenty of steam behind it was sent into the ring with a clever workman and he was strong, had just as good a punch, was just as game, and to his advantage he had all the advantage in the world in the matter of experience and cleverness, younger with grit and plenty and a stout heart.

Attell Fights Well

It was apparent to any sane person in the house as early as the fourth round that Attell was not in the contest with that Monte was all to the good and that he so far outclassed his man that there was only the dying man's chance for Dell to win, and had his ends used any good judgment they would have thrown in the towel during any round prior to the tenth and acknowledged defeat; as it is, they allowed one of the gamest little fellows I have ever seen keep on fighting until he was thoroughly beaten up and subdued, and nine chances out of ten he will never be the stout-hearted fighter again that he was last night.

Referee Frank Schuler will be criticized to some extent for not stopping the fight at the proper time.

RELiance TO HOLD ROUND- THE-LAKE RACE TOMORROW

Club Basketball Team Defeats Brooklyn's

FRANK BROWNELL OF THE OAKLAND RELIANCE ATHLETIC CLUB, WHO WILL PARTICIPATE IN THE ROUND-THE-LAKE RACE TOMORROW MORNING.

One of the events in local sport which is attracting a good deal of attention at the present moment is the "round-the-lake" race, which will be held tomorrow morning under the auspices of the Reliance Club. The distance embraces more than six miles and some of the best sprinters on this side of the bay are entered in the contest. The affair will start at 11 o'clock from the Reliance building at the corner of Thirteenth and Harrison streets.

Among the prominent runners are Frank Brownell and Martin Hartman. Both of them represented the Reliance at the big Marathon held in Seattle on Washington's birthday. Good time was being made by Brownell when cramps forced him out of the fight in the twenty-third mile. Up to that time he was third and running in good shape.

In a game of basketball at the Reliance gymnasium last evening the Reliance team defeated the Brooklyn five easily, by the score of 35 to 15. The club has played all around their opponents and at no stage of the game did the Brooklyn show any chance of winning. Parker, who played center for the Reliance, and Collins, right forward, were the stars of the game, making runs from very difficult positions.

Captain Ray Harris and Charles Mann, of the Brooklyn, put up a splendid game but lacked the support of the rest of the players.

Otto L. Fritsch, coach of the Reliance team, was referee.

Tomorrow morning the Reliance basketball team will play the Oakland Central Merchants, at the Claremont County Club grounds. This will be the second game of the season for the club team.

COLLEGIANS LOSE TO OUTLAWS

Local State Leaguers Strong in Fielding and Bunting

Oakland Invaders, 9; St. Mary's, 0.

That's the best team we have played so far this year," said Brother Joseph Cy Morring yesterday afternoon after the State League had fairly slaughtered St. Mary's University team in a baseball game on the college campus by a 9 to 0 score. That is a mighty big assertion to make, for the youngsters have gone up against some powerful opposition. The Oakland Invaders, the White Sox, Seals, Commodore, Senators and others, but one thing is certain, the dubbing yesterday in the worst they have received this year. All the other games St. Mary's has been able to score and always held their opponents close. The Oakland Invaders, who came to make the hit off Hart, the Oaks three off White, and the game at Sacramento last week tonight.

But yesterday Cy Morring's warriors found that for nine innings and a many runs. To further emphasize the championship of the local State League, the Oakland Invaders, who came to make the hit off Hart, the Oaks three off White, and the game at Sacramento last week tonight.

Up to the ninth frame the invaders were at the worst end of a 3 to 2 score, but Hillen's three base poke talking on Spencer's single, tied the score.

Henderson pitched for the Oaklanders and had the college boys all to the bad, striking out 21, and then turned the mound over to Bloomfield, who in turn fanned nine. At bat the invaders are particularly strong.

Widow pitched the second game for the collegians and consistently until the fourth, when he was up a bit, and worked one more. Two men were out, the invaders, who were up three men on bases Dewey hit in center field scoring Spencer and McLaughlin.

Olga Nethersole Talks About Children on Stage

CHICAGO.—Olga Nethersole passed through Chicago Tuesday and took occasion to urge the right of children to act in Illinois. It is possible that she heard of Mrs. Fisk's trying to cuddle a 17-year-old boy on her lap in "Salvation Nell" or of the younger sister in "The Warrens of Virginia," who was quite grown up instead of the child the audience was expected to believe her, for she urged that an act be passed by the Legislature permitting children to have employment in theaters. "Illinois is the only place in any civilized country where children may not appear on the stage," said Miss Nethersole.

Marriage an 'Involuntary Servitude,' She Declares, and Against U. S. Constitution

A New York woman, a certain Mrs. Strong, is bringing suit in the United States courts for a separation from her husband. The reason the action is being brought in the Federal instead of the State courts is not that Mr. Strong is a counterfeiter, a mail robber, or a kidnaper, but that the lady alleges that her marriage is "involuntary servitude" of the kind prohibited by the Thirteenth Amendment, and therefore unconstitutional and void.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT STILL KEEPS UP STRUGGLE

The cause of "votes for women" continues to prosper at home and abroad. The South Dakota legislature has just passed an equal suffrage bill. In England, within a few weeks, suffragettes have gone up in air-ships, rioted and gone to jail, cheerfully demanding votes and making things unpleasant in Parliament. One alert propagandist had herself sent by mail to the prime minister, but he ungraciously declined to receive this registered package of trouble. In America, also, there are signs of awakening, although the agitation here is quieter and more ladylike. A trainload of New York women recently besieged Albany and bombarded the State capitol with their annual demand for the suffrage.

The Supposedly 'Terrible' Pankhursts

Leaders of England's Militant Women Suffragists

The women suffragists in England hold a demonstration of honor when one of their members gets arrested and incarcerated and another grand rally when the arrested member gets released. To the joy and delight of the militant suffragists, Miss Christabel Pankhurst succeeded in getting herself sentenced to a term in Holloway prison, says Human Life. Her offense was that she crawled through a window of a building where a political meeting was held and unfurled a banner bearing the legend "Votes for Women." It is a way with Miss Pankhurst to interrupt political meetings by interpolating such remarks as "What about votes for women?" and similar pertinent sentences. Her more recent exploit was to gain admittance to the House of Parliament and shout from the floor, "Stop discussing the children's bill and attend to the women first."

It is no wonder the name of Pankhurst causes a convulsion in the House of Parliament and in the office of the English Prime Minister every time it is mentioned. And no wonder, for the Pankhurst suffragists have waged King Edward on his way from Buckingham palace to open Parliament; they have stormed the residences of the Cabinet Ministers; they have precipitated a pitched battle with the police in their efforts to force their way into the House of Commons, causing arrest and imprisonment; they have charged in phalanxes successively the residences of Campbell-Bannerman and Sir Herbert Asquith, and they have assembled in such multitudes outside the House of Parliament that 5000 policemen had their hands literally full to keep them from breaking into the halls of legislation.

A little Manchester widow is the particular bit of firebrand that keeps things hot in the suffrage oven in England. Her name is Emmeline Pankhurst, and her late husband backed her with his last expiring breath and left the terrestrial sphere happy in the knowledge that his two daughters, Christabel and Sylvia, stood hand in hand with their mother in the fight for suffrage and property rights. The man Pankhurst was a champion of no mean attainments and his championship for his wife's ideals cost him the sex the control of $150,000,000 worth of married women's property, which was by act of Parliament turned over to their ownership absolutely. Mrs. Pankhurst's two daughters are lovingly referred to as "female terrorists," because of the vehement agitation they have aroused. Strange to say, the mother of the "Shrieking Pankhurst" is a woman of reserve and "a certain aloofness of disposition, though a good mixer." She has a will of iron and is as unyielding as it made of Harveyized steel. She sits sedately in her suite of thirteen offices in London and keeps in touch with the suffrage movement in every part of the United Kingdom. It takes twelve typewriters to handle her correspondence, and they all work for the sheer love of the cause. Mrs. Pankhurst founded the Woman's Social and Political Union and she and her daughters are the center and organizers of all the political end of the suffrage agitation. They call mass meetings, arrange window-smashing pilgrimages, secure speakers and keep up a continuous performance all over the land; they provide for street parades, militant demonstrations and defend voluntary martyrs of the movement who get into the toils of the law. Mrs. Pankhurst trains speakers, tells them what to say, and how to say it effectively. She is 50 years old, but looks almost as youthful as her daughters, is slightly gray and small of stature. Her eyes are steely gray and burn fire from beneath her arched brows.

The little Manchester widow was educated in Paris, and through the friendship of a daughter of the fiery writer, Henri Rochefort, imbued his revolutionary propaganda. She is a vegetarian, a total abstainer and personally seems devoid of the kind of hysteria that she inspires. She has served on the School Board and on the Board of Guardians of the Poor in her native city of Manchester. Her executive ability was developed before she married, and her penchant for public speaking made her services much in demand when she was a humble follower in the ranks. Her cultured and winsome personality attracted gentle and refined women to the cause she espoused. "Mrs. Pankhurst never sleeps," they say, and as a matter of fact she rests only six hours out of the twenty-four. As a trainer of women she is a wonder, and perhaps the finest example of her art is her daughter Christabel, the shrieking suffragist, who harangues mobs, gets arrested, harasses courts and ridicules man-made laws and walks boldly over a "tyrant man." Christabel is a trained barrister and an accomplished speaker and the idol of her mother's e. She is a writer of forceful English and took a university education to follow in the footsteps of her father as far as the law would allow. By her address she is called a "dramatic beauty with languishing dark eyes, dark hair and a most graceful figure." Physically she is a Joan of Arc, for she transpires miles winter or summer without the least show of fatigue; and delivers fierce harangues at the end of her journeys. It is she who is called "the terrible," having earned her sobriquet from various hours with London "bobbies." Her sister, Sylvia, however, wins her battles along strictly feminine lines. She is gentle and soft in manner and her specialty is in getting arrested and placed in solitary confinement where she can write about it. She is strong on getting the sympathy of judges and juries and eliciting the support of society women in the cause.

Who Is Going to Do the Housework?

Who is to do the housework? Not the hired girl, surely. All over the world the servant girl disappears, says Success. Soon she will be as rare as the bison or the dodo. Formerly the good, easily satisfied German girl who worked, not for wages, but because she liked it, was so numerous that a part of her had to migrate to America, with the result that the kitchens of a continent became Teutonic. Now she no longer emigrates, and even in Germany there are not enough of her to go around. The great empires grow all the time. Every year there are a new million of Germans who want Gretchen to cook their dinner or darn their socks for them, and all the while the number of Gretchen is dwindling, dwindling, dwindling, until now, according to a recent government report, only one family in Berlin out of eight can boast of a servant. "Who is to do the housework?" Well, perhaps there is not going to be so much housework.

Isadora Duncan, the Maud Allan Of Paris, and Group of Her Pupils

Miss Isadora Duncan, who really preceded Miss Maud Allan as an exponent of classic dancing—and costume—but never created any such furore in London, has gained a large following in Paris, and bids fair to have a similar vogue with society ladies there. She has been conducting a school at Neuilly (now being given up) for young girls, whose distinctive costume attracted much attention when they walked out in the Bois or elsewhere.

THE COMING DAY

Grieve not, sad heart, there is an end of tears! Think not that sorrow shadows all the years! The darkest hour comes before the day, The saddest moments pass like night away. For in the world is love and song and light; Work to be done and battles still to fight. Mourne not the past, whatever is right will be, And each new dawn conceals a victory. —Tennison, Benjamin.

HER SMILE

She is not fair to outward view As many maidens be, Her loveliness I never knew Until she smiled on me; Out then I saw her eyes were bright, A well of love, a spring of light. But now her looks are coy and cold, To mine they never reply, And yet I cease not to behold The love-light in her eye; Her very frowns are fairer far Than smiles of other maidens are. —Hartley Coleridge.

Jeweler Weds His Daughter's Brother-in-Law

PHILADELPHIA.—When Samuel Kind, the jeweler, of 1110 Chestnut street, is married to Miss Ida Kohn of 2420 North Broad street, next week, he will become the brother-in-law of his son-in-law, and his only daughter will be his sister-in-law by marriage. A widower for a number of years, Mr. Kind, who is well up in the sixties, surprised his family, composed of his sons, Frank, Oscar and Philip Kind, associated with him in the jewelry business; Morris Kind, who lives in the West, and his daughter, Mrs. Isadora Kohn, by announcing several weeks ago his approaching marriage to the sister of his daughter's husband. Both are well known in Jewish circles in this city. The license was issued yesterday.

Cynical Comments Of a Business Girl

Instructed love looks like inspired devotion on the stage. A friend in need is usually one whose purse we can bleed. Platonism usually drives one or the other to philosophy. A cynic who nobody loves declares a girl who is long on soul is usually short on sweethearts. Life is a game of bridge—and lots of people are interested only when the stakes are cold cash. It's a comforting new thought—that the world owes us a living—and she withholds it only when we doubt and dan her for it.

When Thou Art Near Me

When thou art near me, Sorrow seems to fly, And then I think, as well I may, That on this earth there dwells no one More blest than I. But when thou leav'st me, Doubts and fears arise, And darkness reigns, Whence all before me lies. The sunshine of my soul Is in those eyes, And when they leave me All the world is night. But when thou art near me, Sorrow seems to fly, And then I feel, as well I may, That on this earth there dwells no one So blest as I. —Lady John Scott.

BOTH OUT OF BUSINESS

Dan Cupid drew his tiny bow And aimed his fatal dart; Now they are brothers in their woo— She had a marble heart.

Even Staid Old Germany Is Having Her Bachelor Girls

Things and times are changing quickly in Germany. The German hausfrau used to be contented with the lot of the perfect housewife, spending long evenings at the kitchen table, spinning, mending and darning, and through a six-foot pipe, but she would not have been home, and the children to bed, even when a day the German words for "Mad Blue Home" put out the slippers and ready to greet the home-coming lord, master with a pleasant and forgiving smile. The young German girl who had no checks, a discontented temper, and a hundred dollars in the bank, might be time to become a hausfrau. If she did not have all these qualifications, she never be anything higher than a maid. The German girl, according to M. Alfred Sedgwick, is a new school, and two evils are a common ailment. One of leaving a train haufman or a splinter bent, she has initiated her sister and become a cheerful bachelor girl. These bachelor girls are springing up everywhere in Germany. They are university students and doctors and lecturers and engineers and journalists and novelists and painters and teachers. Not having a good husband to bring home sausage and cabbage, they have gone out into the wide world to earn their sausage and cabbage themselves. The bachelor girl and the whole German people will doubtless be better off as a result of the German girl's new independence. Perhaps the women's clubs and the women's newspapers and all the rest of it may teach the German lord and master that if he wants to get a wife he will have to promise to keep good hours and sip his Munich beer and smoke his six-foot pipe at home, at least part of the time. But the conservatives, and especially the old people, who do not quite understand these new ideas about the freedom of women, are beginning to ask "Who will do the housework?"

Only Girl Wireless Operator In the World at Waldorf-Astoria

There is a girl who sits on the roof of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and sends off wireless messages every day from 8 in the morning until 4 in the afternoon. It is Miss Anna A. Novins, the only girl wireless operator in the world. We do not know Miss Novins, but we predict that she will not long remain the only girl wireless operator. Women are coming into all the trades and professions and professions in America, and are coming in faster than ever now. There are six million women in the United States who are already working for wages, to say nothing of the twenty millions who are working without getting wages. Every day hides women into occupations which people have always considered as reserved for men. We have women cab-drivers, women barbers, women laborers, women in almost every trade except that of longshoremen and telegraph linemen. The problem of women in industry is one of the greatest and greatest in American life. What does it mean for good or evil to the women who work, to the men who work, to the children at home—if there are children at home—and to the family and marriage?

Georgia Solon Raises Point as to Whether or Not It Is a Crime for Women To Be Pretty

Is it a crime for a woman to be beautiful? That depends, according to a Georgia legislator, upon whether beauty is natural or acquired. The beautiful Southern belle has no fault to find with women who are born beautiful, but she does not speak kindly of those who have beauty of which she is proud. She trusts beauty of the former drug store. The bill which the honorable member has introduced into the legislature provides that if any woman shall knowingly and with purpose, afterthought, or premeditation, be delayed into matrimony by any unsuspecting male Georgian, by means of secrets, paints, powders, perfumes, medicines, waters, artificial teeth or any other aids in beauty of face or figure, the marriage may be declared null and void. It seems unlikely that a legislative body of childlike Southern gentlemen will pass such an uncompromising act. This law would be a fatal admission that the much sunnied and balladized beauty of the Southern women is somewhat less than skin deep. But even if it should pass in Georgia, it is not likely to become a general movement. As a nation we should not care to see our women labeled with guarantees under a pure food and drug act. We who are so proud of our self-made men are not likely to discriminate unfairly against our self-made women.

Vice-President Sherman's Wife Got Into the President's Box at an Eames Concert

There Was the Liveliest Kind of Hustling to Get the Tangle Straightened Out.

WASHINGTON.—An incident that occurred during inauguration week in Washington, and in regard to which strenuous efforts have been made to prevent the facts from becoming public, has aroused considerable gossip and amusement in the drawing circles. On the afternoon that Mrs. Eames was to give her much-honored concert at the Columbia Theater, she thought it would be a delicate attention on her part to invite the President and Mrs. Taft to occupy a box and lend the glamor of their presence to the occasion. This she did, and her invitation was graciously accepted.

Woman Suffrage Achieves Victory In Chicago

Woman suffragists of Chicago are rejoicing because of the great victory which they won in the charter convention a short while ago, by a vote of twelve to one, adopted the plank which for municipal women suffrage. The convention now goes to the State legislature and the suffragists will maintain a full force in the city and go to the Springfield and other parts of the State. The municipal campaign has been adequately covered by the press of immense editorial value. It has been supported by women representing the best thought of the city, prominent among whom are June Ames, Mrs. Charles (Henrotin), Mrs. C. W. Vaughn, Mrs. C. C. and Mrs. E. L. Stewart. Mrs. Stewart is the president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association, an officer in the National American Woman's Suffrage Association and the treasurer of the Woman's Municipal Campaign Committee. It is she who has her hands to every one in this work. Mrs. Stewart was also the most important factor in the organization of the League for woman suffrage, which was launched in Chicago and office some of the best known political workers in the Windy City.

JENNY KISSED ME

Jenny kissed me when we met, Jumping from the chair she sat in; Time, you thief, who love to eat, Sweets into your list, put that in; Say I'm weary, say I'm sad, Say that health and wealth have missed me. Say I'm growing old, but add, Jenny kissed me. —Leigh Hunt.

LIKE MARIE ANTOINETTE SHE RECEIVES 'TRADES PEOPLE' in Bed

CHICAGO.—One advanced matron of this city who has come through great tribulation (social) into a recognized position at the capital has recently got herself into the critical gossip mart by assuming the regal airs of the lamented Marie Antoinette and receiving her "trades people" in bed. Of course, it is a most inauspicious and artistic bed, as a certain decorator who interviewed her the other day can attest, and her negligence was of the most exquisite lace and lawn, but Chicago is not quite ready for such innovations and consequently has begun to say sharp things about the custom. But with sweet indifference she goes on, and when a personerated by a friend recently she merely indicated that "these people do not exist for me, dear me!" I wonder if she remembers the thought of course she is like another dame who copied the same informal way of meeting her "trades people," and called down the tribulation from one of the decorators who she had had a marital conference with some power the gifle gie us—

FATE

Two shall be born the whole wide world apart, And speak in different tongues, and have no thought Each of the other's being, and no heed; And those o'er unknown seas to unknown lands Shal cross, escaping wreck, defying death And, all unconsciously, shape every act And bend each wandering step to this one end— That one day out of darkness they shall meet And read life's meaning in each other's eyes. And two shall walk some narrow way of life, So nearly side by side that should one turn Ever so little space to left or right They needs must stand acknowledged face to face, And yet, with wistful eyes that never meet, With groping hands that never clasp, And lips Calling in vain to ears that never hear, They seek each other all their weary days And die unsatisfied; and this is Fate.
